Award winning film Ballad from Tibet by Chinese director Zhang Wei was screened in New York City in March.

The film tells the story of four visually impaired kids from China's Tibet going on a journey for their dreams.

Based on a true story, Ballad from Tibet is about the four Tibetan kids — Thupten, Sonam, Kelsang and Droma — achieving their dreams against all odds.

Thupten is a 10-year-old boy partially sighted in one eye and blind in the other. His doctor says that there is a chance that he could completely lose his sight, but there is an operation that could offer a 50 percent of saving his vision.

His teacher firmly suggests that he should have the operation right away, but Thupten is afraid and wants to see the world before his life is plunged into total darkness.

Along with his three friends who also suffer from blindness, Thupten goes on an exciting adventure. Together they decide to go to Shenzhen in South China's Guangdong Province, a city more than 37,000km away from Tibetan capital Lhasa.

The reason for the children's decision to go to Shenzhen is their love of music. They are all talented and want to sing their hearts out in front of the national audience by participating in a Shenzhen - based reality show.

The foursome's trip is indeed fun, but also turns out to be dangerous. Luckily, help is on hand along the way in the form of a wandering family, a shepherd, a motorcycle club, and a TV producer's assistant.

Why does time seem to fly faster as we get old? You've got your aging brain to blame. This is likely due largely to the physical changes of our nerves and neurons(神经元). New research suggests 'rapid fire' abilities of the young brain allow us to process more information during youth, causing the days to seem longer earlier in life. However, as we get old, researchers say the older brain takes more time to process information.

The new finding put forward by a Duke University researcher was published in a paper in the journal European Review this week. According to Adrian Bejan, the J. A Jones Professor of Mechanical Engineering at Duke, the physical changes of our nerves and neurons play a major role in our perception(知觉) of time as we get old. Over the years these structures become more complex and eventually begin to degrade.

"Little babies, for example, move their eyes much more often than adults because they're processing images at a faster rate," Bejan says. For older people, this means fewer images are being processed in the same amount of time, causing experiences to seem as though they're happening more quickly.

8. What causes time to fly faster as we get old?
- A. Changes of our nerves and neurons.
  - B. Information in our brain .
  - C. The electrical signals.
  - D. Rapid fire abilities.

  - C. Aging brains.
  - D. Less experience.

10. The passage shows that _____.

- A. young people are more energetic in their life
- B. the younger brain takes less time to process information
- C. old people have fewer things to do than young people

- D. The Function of the Brain.

D

With golden sunshine and a gentle breeze, Autumn is the most beautiful season in the year. This is a great time to go outside and have fun. Go to a valley to see red maple trees, go and pick fruit in an orchard or find an open field to fly your kite in.

However, for many high school students, these great activities may be just a dream. With plenty of work to do, they spend all their hours indoors, struggling for a high mark in their exams. Of course, study is one of the most important things for teenagers. But life is definitely much more than that.

Sometimes we spend so much time studying that we forget how to make life wonderful. In doing so, we lose the real purpose of life — to be a valuable and happy person. To enjoy just how great it is to be alive, we have to put down our books and pens and look around us. Students should take some exercise to improve your health, talk with your parents and friends for understanding and walk around outside to refresh your body and mind.

Going out and enjoying the beautiful countryside often helps our creativity in our work. Chinese craftsman, Lu Ban, created a saw to help woodworkers. But if he hadn't walked outside, he would not have been inspired by a kind of toothed grass. We could also suppose if Newton hadn't rested under that apple tree, then he wouldn't have been hit by an apple, and his classic theories would not have come out.

Going out is not only a break from hard work, but a chance to add to life experience. So come on, give your brain a good rest. Step out of the books and get your bag ready for an Autumn outing. We are sure you will get much more than knowledge from the exciting journey.

12. Why is going out a dream for many high school students?

- A. They are unhappy to do so.
- B. They have too much work to do for getting high marks in the exams.
- C. Their parents don't allow them to do so.
- D. They want to be valuable and happy people.

13. The passage is developed mainly by_____.
- A. describing the beautiful scenery in Autumn
  - B. pointing out the present situation of high school students
  - C. making predictions
  - D. reasoning and giving examples
14. What message can you learn from the passage?
- A. The author isn't happy with our education at all.
  - B. Lu Ban was inspired by an apple.
  - C. All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.
  - D. Life is definitely much more than studying indoors.
15. What is the passage mainly about?
- A. Autumn is a great time to go outside.
  - B. High school students spend so much time studying.
  - C. To take some exercise is a way to improve health.
  - D. Going out can make high school students get more.
